Ohio Democratic Split.

The silver-Democratic situation over in Ohio is not quite so harmonious as it has appeared to be on the surface for ome time past. At first it appeared that the candidacy of John R. McLean for the United States senatorship would mee with small opposition from the Democratic brethren, particularly as Mr. Mc-Lean had overcome the objection that he is not a resident of the state with a promise of a liberal dispensation of the sinews of war.

He is not having it all his own way now, however. Paul J. Sorg, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer, will be a candidate for the senate in the event of the Democrats obtaining control of the legislature. Thus we have the curious fact that the faction of the Democratic party which denounces millionaires, whom they love to call "plutocrats," have for their candidates for the United States senate two millionaires, neither of whom will fail to go down deep in his pockets in the effort to defeat other in the campaign against "plutocracy." It would seem from this that the Bryancrats of Ohio bave a greater love for millionaires than they profess to Sorg's candidacy is developing quite a boom for him and he is going to make trouble for the gentleman who re-sides in Washington, and whose only claim on Ohio rests in his ownership of the Cincinnati Enquirer. The contest will involve two factions, one, the Mc-Lean faction, lend by Bernard, and the other led by Tom Cagon, who represent the younger element of the party.

Mr. Sorg may not be said to be very strongly identified with the free silverites, but he will not decline to receive their support. McLean is a radical Bryanite, and for that reason will not re ceive the enthusiastic support of Brice, who, it is said, has helped to develop the Sorg boom. The general impression among all sorts of Ohio politicians is that the formal announcement of Sorg's candidacy means a bitter fight and it may be reasonably expected that when the battle is over the feathers of the Democratic rooter will be sadly pluck-

In the meantime, the Republican aituation is reasonably good. The part will present a united and bold front. The state that furnished the Republican President will retain two Republicans in the senate. It will be contrary to her custom in the past, but she will do it this time. Ohio is not and never has been a Democratic state, though there have been times when she side-tracked herself

Acting Promptly.

It is announced, apparently with authority, that the President will send a special message to Congress this month, immediately on the completion of the tariff bill by the senate, asking that the power be conferred upon him to appoint a currency commission. This will enable the two houses to discuss and pass the measure while the tariff bill is in conferand the special session will be ready to adjourn as soon as the conference report is agreed upon.

Thus will it occur that within about four months after the inauguration of the Republican administration the two important matters to be accomplished in bringing about a restoration of prosperity will have been accomplished, and the country will settle down to business with confidence in the future and relieved from suspense.

This spiendid record for prompt action t succeed in quieting the croak ing of the financial quacks and carping critics, who affect to believe that the effects of four years of pante, depression and general hard times, brought on by the incompetency of the last administration and unwise tariff legislation by a free trade Congress, should be cured in a day. It will, however, be accepted in od faith and with satisfaction by the intelligent masses and the great indus-trial and business world, who really want good times and have a patriotic faith in the resources of this great coun The Bryans will continue to croak even in good times, but their croakings be effective in the midst of a general advancement on safe lines.

Mr. Calhoun's Mission. Mr. William J. Calhoun, who was sent to Cuba to act as counsel for General Lee in the investigation into the cause of the death of Dr. Ruiz, the American citizen alleged to have died in a Spanish prison from brutal treatment be received there. tells a story which indicates that the bottom facts of the case may never be It appears that the Spanish witnesses appearing before the investigators would not tell the truth and the Cuban witnesses were afraid to tell all they knew. Just what General Lee will recommend to the President in his report is not yet known, but judging from the statement made by Mr. Calhoun, it seems safe to predict that it will not be favorable to Spain's side of the controversy. The Spanish do not dispute Dr. Ruiz' Am can eltizenship, nor can they dispute that the unfortunate man was in solltary confinement, and that he died from the effects of a wound in the head. How the wound was received may never be

Doubtless the President will hold that the circumstances are such as to war-rant him in demanding redress from the Spanish government, and if he does so find, the situation will assume an acute phase, and it is possible for it to precipi tate a general opening up of the Cuban question, and the application of rigorous measures in behalf of the revolutionists.

Mr. Calhoun confirms all the press re ports concerning the devastation that has been done by the civil war. The whole country, he says, has been laid waste, and that portion of it through which he passed, and which was one the most prosperous portions of that wonderful land, is to-day almost depop-ulated, "In a short time," said he, "the island will not be worth anything to any

The probability is that the information which President McKinley will re-ceive officially in response to his efforts to ascertain the exact situation will be followed by action on his part that will not be discreditable to this country, and will bring hope and even peace to the remaining struggling patriots and the stricken "queen of the An-

What They Discovered.
At the time of the municipal election in Chicago a few weeks since, which result-ed in a victory for the Democratic ticket headed by Carter Harrison, it was claimed by the free silver Democrats that the verdict was clearly a silver triumph, almost everybody who who was the least bit posted regarding the circumstance of the campaign knew that the sole and only issue involved was a local one, which had nothing whatever to do with national questions.

The Bryanites, however, heralded the result as a victory for free silver which showed a reversal of public opinion since last November. The claim was so ab surd, and it was ridiculed so much by many Democrats themselves, even being repudiated by Mr. Harrison, the victorious candidate for mayor, that it made little impression.

On Monday another election took place in the same city, this time for fourteen circuit court judges. There were two principal tickets in the field, one known as the Republican ticket and the other put up by the silverites. Six of the fourteen men on the Republican ticket were anti-giver Democrats and the remaining eight were straight-out Republicans, also anti-silver.

The silverites forced the silver issue, or was that the entire Republican ticket was elected by pluralities of about 16,000, a light vote being polled. The silver question figured directly in the campaign, so far as the silverites themselves were concerned; they asked that the sil-ver strength be polled for their men.

In view of these facts, our silver friends should regard the result as more deeply significant than was the result of the spring election, which they tried to jubilate over, but in which no national question figured, the issue being a more liberal enforcement of the local Sunday laws. The fact is that Tuesday's election demonstrated that there has been no revulsion of feeling in Chicago on the money question.

The silverites of Chicago have merely discovered what the Tammanyites in New York will discover if they insist on a similar course in that city's coming election-namely, that a national question, especially one involving the honesty of our currency, dragged into a purely local contest for municipal and judicial offices will result in the undoing of those who force it

There are grave fears of a repetition of the scenes that were witnessed at the coronation of the case when the celebration of the queen's jubilee occurs. The indications are that even London is not large enough to hold the millions that will be added to her population, and the queen is said to be nervous with fear that some dread catastrophe will occur in consequence of the great rush. It is hoped that nothing whatever will occur to mar the pleasure of so joyful an event, and yet it begins to look as if the affair has been planned on too large a scale for absolute safety.

The Register, in a lengthy editorial, urges that Mr. Bryan, the boy crator, be invited to Wheeling to lecture. there is no campaign on in this city this year, there will be ample time before the next election for whatever harm he does the Popocracy to wear off, and perhaps the leaders will not object to have him come and gather in a few of Wheeling's one-hundred cent gold standard dollars. Let's have him by all means. Republi cans and true old-time Democrats will no doubt help contribute to hear themselves called all sorts of bad things,

As predicted by the Intelligencer, the enate sugar schedule, which is so pleas ing to the sugar trust and has on that account provoked no end of criticism, will not stand, the Republican senators having instructed the finance commit tee to report a new schedule, which will be more satisfactory to the country and at the same time be sufficiently protective. This will insure an earlier disposal of the question than was anticipated and quiet much of the opposition

The meeting of the silver Republicans in Chicago is not really a very significant affair, since it is composed of those who assisted the silver Democrats last year, and no one expected that they would get over on the sound money side of the question so soon. They have cast their lot with the repudiationists and the fact that they call themselves Republicans is not a thing of much m They may call themselves what they please. We know what they are,

In Bolivia a member of the Chilean legation had his ears cut off by a young man whose sister had been insulted by the diplomat. The incident may cause diplomatic trouble between Chile and Bollvin, but the young man who suffered the loss of his ears will not likely get much satisfaction out of it.

THE THOMPSON BOYS.

Sons of the Late Col. W. P. Thompson to Sell Their Breeding Farm. New York Press: Few of us expected the Thompson boys, Lou and Billy, to remain long on the turf, and when their father died, we made up our minds that Jimmie Rowe would soon be out of a job. Lou would rather shoot a pigeon than win a suburban, when the wind is in the right direction, and would not give three months in the Rocky Mountains for a whole season of Rocky Mountains for a whole season of Metropolitan and Brooklyn Handleaps. There is no excitement on the turf for, these millionaires. They were not brought up in a betting school, and horse-racing without betting is about as dull and tiresome as mumbletypes. Lou Thompson is an clongated edition of his father, the late president of the Leaf Trust and an earnest friend of the turf, though he became so suffer too shortly before his death to be of great assistance. For awhile we regarded the youth of six leet, three as the leading piezon shot in the United States, but he fell into a habit of going after pobler game in the great northwest.

ine leading piecon shot in the United States, but he fell into a habit of going after nobler game in the great northwest.

The grizzly and the elk were his quarry. He has nearly as many relica and evidences of the chane as Rector Rainsford, the famous hunter of bearskins and antiers in the woods and machine men in the city. They say that a srizzly attempted to squeez Lou to death on one occasion, but the young man was too thin. Bruin falled to get a grip on him, and while he was fumbling around Lou slid from between the enveloping paws and escaped.

I doubt if Colomei W. P. Thompson ever spent happier years than those at Brookdale. He died all too soon. Being on a visit there one day, I saw a splendid chestnut, mounted by a woman, salling across country, fairly eating up the earth and taking fences like the colomel's daughter. She was a dashing fearless horsewoman, who vowed that she would never marry a man who did not love horses and riding. I believe she did marry one who never sait a horse in his life and does not know a fetick from a stifle. It usually happens so. I used to see Lou and Billy, their long legs drawn up under them, sunning behind the barn like ordinary country boys. The colonel lived in the pastures with the yearlings. Mrs. Thompson is an old-fashloned woman, who loves her family and delights in having her house alive with kinfolk. Her manners are gracious, while her heart warms toward her guests in a way that coully disarms formality.

And now we are informed these Thompson boys. Lou and Billy, each several times a millionaire, possessed of the finest breeding farm in the entire east, stocked with some of the finest most streeting farm in the entire east, stocked with some of the finest propositions in the land, with crops of promising yearlings, with a powerful racing stable, with one of the most expert trainers America has ever known, with ample leisure for any source and retire. It seems a strange capice.
